Notice Regarding Potential Impact on Delivery and Pricing Due to Middle East Situation

Dear Customer,

We sincerely appreciate your continued support and business with us.

Due to the recent developments in the Middle East, there have been rising energy costs, fluctuations in raw material prices, and instability in logistics, which may impact global supply chains.

At present, no significant disruptions have occurred in our operations. However, depending on future developments, there is a possibility that procurement delays or supply constraints may affect delivery schedules.

Regarding delivery, we would like to confirm the procurement and production status at the time of each order and provide delivery schedules on a case-by-case basis.

In addition, depending on trends in raw material prices and transportation costs, we may need to discuss adjustments to pricing.

We will continue to make every effort to maintain stable supply through procurement strategies and inventory management.

We kindly ask for your understanding and cooperation under these circumstances.

We appreciate your continued support.

Sincerely,
